

ICO call for views on a direct marketing code of practice

Information Commissioner's Office

It is important that organisations ensure their marketing activities are compliant with data protection legislation (the General Data Protection Regulation and Data Protection Act 2018) and, where necessary, the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations 2003 (PECR).

The new code of practice will build on our current direct marketing guidance and address the aspects of the new legislation relevant to direct marketing such as transparency and lawful bases for processing, as well as covering the rules on electronic marketing (for example emails, text messages, phone calls) under PECR.

The European Union is in the process of replacing the current e-privacy law (and therefore PECR) with a new ePrivacy Regulation (ePR). However the new ePR is yet to be agreed and there is no certainty about what the final rules will be. Because of this we intend for the direct marketing code to only cover the current PECR rules until the ePR is agreed. Once the ePR is finalised and the UK position in relation to it is clear we will produce an updated version of the code which takes this into account as appropriate.

Please send us your views by 24 December 2018.

Q1 The code will address the changes in data protection legislation and the implications for direct marketing. What changes to the data protection legislation do you think we should focus on in the direct marketing code?

Due to the more stringent definition of consent under the GDPR we find that more organisations rely on legitimate interest as their lawful basis to process personal data for direct marketing purposes. It would be useful for the direct marketing code to focus on the perimeters of legitimate interest and set out circumstances where it would be appropriate and inappropriate to rely on this lawful basis.
