Request

You asked us: "...1. Over the past 12 months, how many Freedom of Information request appeals against the Information Commissioner's Office have been dismissed or allowed by the First Tier Tribunal (FTT) (whether on the papers or with an in-person or online hearing) without the ICO submitting a skeleton argument?

2. Over the past 12 months, how many Freedom of Information request appeals against the Information Commissioner's Office have been dismissed or allowed by the First Tier Tribunal following an in-person or online hearing without the ICO attending or being represented at the hearing?"

We received your request on 20 December 2023.

We have handled your request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (the FOIA).

Our response

We can confirm that we hold information that falls under the scope of your request. However, finding, retrieving and extracting the information would exceed the cost limit set out by section 12 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA).

The Freedom of Information and Data Protection (Appropriate Limit and Fees) Regulations 2004 states that the 'appropriate limit' for the ICO is £450. We have determined that £450 would equate to 18 hours work.

To locate the information you have requested would require a manual search of 141 cases for request 1 and 54 cases for request 2. We obtained these figures by reviewing our management information systems that the ICO holds for closed cases as a case needs to be closed in order us to record this information.

A manual search is required because the requested information is not information we normally need for our purposes and we are unable to run a quick automated report for the type of information requested. Additionally, it is not information that the ICO specifically records.

We have completed a sample of five cases and can estimate that it would take eight minutes to complete each search - and it is certain that some searches would take much longer than that - this would equate to over 26 hours' worth of searching. This clearly exceeds the 18 hours which would accrue a charge of £450 or more, triggering the provisions of section 12 of the FOIA.

We would also like to explain that we are satisfied that your requests are similarly related enough that they should be combined for the purposes of us considering if the cost limit is exceeded. This is because they all about the same overarching theme; cases dismissed or allowed by the FTT.

Advice and Assistance

You may be able to refine your request by:

- Asking for the requested information within a reduced timeframe.
- Asking for the requested information relating to a particular public authority or public authorities.
- Asking for the requested information from a particular case or cases. You can locate previous cases via this website: Information Tribunal > Search \(tribunals.gov.uk\)
- For request 1, asking for information from, either, on the papers cases or in-person/online hearing cases.

We can also advise that request 2, when considered in isolation, would not exceed the cost limit.

If the request can be brought under the cost limit, as we still need to complete manual searches, we would need to consider if it is in the public interest for us to dedicate the resources necessary to carry out this kind of search, or whether it represents an unreasonable burden on us as a public authority. Even if the searches to complete a request will take less than the 18 hours limit, a single request can still be refused if it is deemed to represent an unreasonable burden.

We have provided you with this information so you are aware that future requests may be refused but this does not necessarily mean this will happen and will be dependent upon the information requested. Please do not be discouraged from making future requests as we consider each one a case by case basis.

This concludes our response.
