Request

You asked us:

"I am interested in obtaining the job titles of individuals in non-junior positions within the UK government who are granted access to the diary of the Information Commissioner. This request pertains to any individuals who may have access to the Information Commissioner's diary for any purpose, including but not limited to meetings, consultations, or other official interactions.

To clarify, I am seeking the job titles and positions, not the names or personal details of these individuals. This request is made in the interest of transparency and accountability, and I believe that knowing who has access to the Information Commissioner's diary is a matter of public interest.

Specifically, I would like to know if individuals such as the Chairperson of the Public Administration and Constitutional Affairs Committee or other similar positions have access to the Information Commissioner's diary.

Please provide this information in an electronic format. If there are any relevant documents or policies that outline the criteria for granting access to the Information Commissioner's diary, please include those as well."

We received your request on 24 January.

We have handled your request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (the FOIA).

Our response
