Health and Safety Policy

Part 1 – Policy and organisation
1. Scope

1.1 The Health and Safety policy applies to all employees of the Information Commissioner's Office and any agency staff, secondees, contractors or visitors to ICO premises.

1.2 The policy applies to all ICO workplaces. This includes regional offices, though it is recognised that some variances in procedures may be required in regional offices to reflect local practice.

1.3 The Health and Safety policy also applies to staff who are working from home or remotely from the office.

2. Purpose

2.1 The purpose of this policy is to inform staff and others of the arrangements for managing health and safety at the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO).

2.2 The ICO recognises its responsibilities regarding health, safety and welfare at work in accordance with the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, all other relevant Health and Safety legislation and the Fire Precautions (Workplace) Regulations. The policy sets out how the ICO will comply with these laws and regulations.

3. Message from the Commissioner

3.1 I have statutory responsibilities the health and safety of us all at the ICO.

Health and safety is an important issue for everyone. We must all play our part in making sure that our work place and the activities we perform are as safe as possible. We all have a duty of care to look after others and ourselves while we are at work, and this is essential if we are to minimise risks and eliminate hazards that can cause harm.

It can be easy to become complacent about health and safety, particularly given our relatively ‘low risk’ work environment. However, we should not underestimate the risks to our health and safety that can arise where we work and ensure that we all act responsibly and in the best interests of one another.

The health and safety procedures of the ICO are set out in the ‘Arrangements’ and ‘Organisation’ sections of the policy. You should read them so that you are aware of your responsibilities as well as those of key health and safety personnel.

Information Commissioner
4. Health and Safety Policy Statement

It is the objective of the Information Commissioner’s Office that employees and others be protected, so far as is reasonably practicable, from risks to health and safety arising from work activities.

This will be achieved by adopting a safety management strategy that will include the provision of safe working systems and appropriate procedures to cater for all significant risks.

This policy will be supported by the issue of general procedures that detail responsibilities of staff and management. These will each be subject to review and revision by management, in conjunction with the recognised trade unions and the Health and Safety Committee as necessary.

The responsibility for achieving and adhering to acceptable safety standards rests not only with the Commissioner but also with employees, contractors and suppliers of materials to be used at work.

Employers are required by law to publish a safety policy. It is the duty of all employees not only to read this document carefully but to take an active interest in achieving safety at work, and I encourage all members of staff to familiarise themselves with the current health and safety procedures.

The successful implementation of this policy is dependent upon the whole-hearted co-operation of all levels of staff and management.

This statement of policy will be reviewed and revised as appropriate to take account of changes in circumstances or in legal requirements.
